COMMUNITY HIGHLIGHTS

» Last year, Eugene completed a new Bicycle and Pedestrian Master Plan (<http://www.centallanertsp.org/EugeneTSP/PedBikePlan/Home>) updating the bike element of the 2002 TransPlan. This plan proposes that the City of Eugene develop 25.2 miles of sidewalks, 12.1 miles of shared-use paths, and 110.9 miles of bikeways with the next 20 years. This plan includes the latest thinking of innovative bikeway facility design. Bike boulevards, cycle tracks, buffered bike lanes, and shared use paths are featured in this plan to bring new riders and families to our bike system. Even though the plan was only recently completed, over the past year twenty new projects have been completed. Bike lanes were added to three streets near schools and commercial areas by removing parking on one-side of the street. These new lanes removed missing links in a larger network of streets with bike lanes. Eugene voters approved $516,500 in annual funds for bicycle and pedestrian improvements as part a larger pavement bond measure. City staff will work with our BPAC to develop priorities for implementation.
